PAGE 1 — THE EVENING

FADE IN:

EXT. CITY STREET / APARTMENT BUILDING – EVENING

The evening sky is covered with heavy clouds. The road is wet after rain. The surroundings are unusually quiet, with only distant traffic and the occasional sound of water falling from rooftops.

The camera slowly moves toward an apartment building. One window is still lit. Behind it, a quiet evening is about to become something unexpected.

INT. LIVING ROOM – EVENING

A YOUNG WOMAN sits alone in the living room. The television plays softly in the background. She is relaxed at first, but there is a distracted quality in her expression.

She looks at the television. Then at her phone. Then back toward the room.

Nothing seems wrong.

She reaches for something on the table and settles back into her seat.

CLOSE ON – TELEVISION

The screen changes from one program to another. The sound continues, filling the silence.

BACK TO WOMAN

She watches for a few seconds. A small sound comes from somewhere behind her.

She turns.

The room is empty.

HI

PAGE 3 — THE MESSAGE & THE LAST HI

INT. HALLWAY – NIGHT

The woman looks down at the phone. Her expression changes immediately.

There is a new message.

PHONE SCREEN

She stares at the single word. A moment passes. She looks around the hallway.

WOMAN

"Who is this?"

She waits. No reply.

INT. LIVING ROOM – MOMENTS LATER

She walks back into the living room, still holding the phone. The television is playing, but she no longer pays attention to it.

She checks the message again. The word "HI" remains on the screen.

She starts typing a reply, then stops. She deletes what she typed.

PHONE VIBRATES AGAIN.

She looks down.

Her breathing becomes quicker. She puts the phone on the table.

The room suddenly feels much larger than it did before.

A SHADOW MOVES ACROSS THE HALLWAY.

She looks up. The hallway is empty.

She stands completely still and looks toward the phone.

KNOCK. KNOCK.

She freezes.

"Who's there?"

Silence.

KNOCK. KNOCK.

She takes a few steps toward the door, but stops before reaching it.

Her phone vibrates one final time.

CLOSE ON – PHONE

The woman slowly looks toward the hallway. The camera moves away from her, leaving more of the dark hallway visible.

INT. LIVING ROOM – NIGHT

The light outside has faded. The television is now the main source of movement in the room. The woman lowers the volume.

She sits still and listens.

Nothing.

She smiles slightly at herself, as though embarrassed for being nervous.

WOMAN

“Why am I getting scared for no reason?”

She stands and walks toward the table. Her phone is there. She picks it up and checks the screen.

No new messages.

She places the phone down.

A SOFT SOUND FROM THE HALLWAY.

The woman freezes.

She looks toward the hallway. The doorway is dark.

WOMAN

“Hello?”

No answer.

She waits another moment.

The television continues playing behind her.

INT. HALLWAY – CONTINUOUS

She slowly steps into the hallway. The camera remains several feet behind her.

The hallway appears completely normal.

She takes another step.

Her phone suddenly VIBRATES in her hand.
